Stock

Stock is at the heart of SM; all modules interface to it in some way. The stock module allows users to see what stock is currently available, what is expected in (and when) from suppliers or production, and what the impact of sales and enquiries-demand is on stock levels.

Key Features

- At-a-glance view of weights, numbers, lengths, etc, in stock;
- View chemistry and mechanical properties if appropriate
- Drill-down facilities from product totals, through the individual batches that make up the totals, to details not only of the batches but also where they came from (eg purchase, production) and how they're committed (eg sales, production)
- See what's due in, when it's due and what its cost is expected to be
- See how cost is made up: eg purchased at so much per tonne, with any number of added values, eg for transport, inspection, manufacturing, testing, etc
- See what's committed on current orders and when it's required
- Full traceability at batch level of both quantity and value
